Recap on March Event: Maintaining Brain Health: Do's and Don't

Dr. Jesse Brand, a board-certified clinical neurophysiologist, spoke recently about how we can maintain and improve our learning, retention, and recall skills as we age. He reassured the attendees that mental lapses such as forgetting a word or misplacing objects are common and are not necessarily a cause for concern. He defined dementia as a decline in cognitive functioning that can impair our daily living. He emphasized that it is a symptom not a disease itself. In addition, there are lifestyle changes, supported by research, that can help us build resilience against dementia. These include challenging yourself by learning something new, reducing risk factors such as smoking, sleep problems, and alcohol use, maintaining a healthy diet, exercising, and maybe most important, maintaining social connections. Ideas presented included volunteering, maintaining close ties with family and friends, walking with a friend, and learning new skills.

According to Dr. Brand, popular brain health products that are widely advertised are a multi-billion-dollar industry that make false promises to consumers. These products have not been proven to be effective.

The Zoom presentation was hosted by Northwest Neighbor's Village and the Chevy Chase Citizens Association on March 23. The full video of Dr. Brand's presentation is available at this link.

How to Create a Native Plant Garden or Pollinator Corridor

Presented by known Master Gardener, Kathy Sykes, on April 13, the event gained a great deal of interest from local gardeners. A video copy of the presentation may be found on CCCA's Youtube channel at this link.

Montgomery Council Supports Renaming Newland (Chevy Chase) Circle

On Tuesday, April 19, the Montgomery Council introduced a resolution affirming the Francis G. Newlands Memorial Removal Act. Introduced in the United States Congress by Senator Chris Van Hollen, Senator Ben Cardin, Representative Jamie Raskin, and Representative Eleanor Holmes Norton, the federal resolution would remove Francis G. Newlands' name from the grounds of the memorial fountain located in Chevy Chase Circle.

United States Senator Francis G. Newlands, who founded the town of Chevy Chase, Maryland in the 1880's was an outspoken white supremacist who actively sought to strip voting rights from African Americans. As a developer, Newlands built communities that excluded immigrants, Jews, and others from living here. While in office, Senator Newlands advocated for the repeal of the 15th amendment, published journals that called for expelling African Americans from the United States, and advocated for "White Plank" policies that would have allowed immigration to the United States only to White people.

“Senator Newlands instituted segregation in the developments in and around Chevy Chase and sought to strip voting rights from people of color. I look forward to the day when the plaque on the memorial constructed in his honor is removed and more worthy residents are honored in his place,” said Councilmember Will Jawando (At-Large).

Many Chevy Chase residents join Councilmember Jawando in this sentiment.
